ROY HAYNES CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

PROHIBITION CHIEF WILL RESIGN PLACE TO MAKE RACE

Is Ambitious to Serve as Ohio's Executive, Abandoned Plans Last Year When James A. White Entered the List—Will Remain At Post Long Enough to See New Enforcement Machinery Organized.

Roy A. Haynes, federal prohibition commissioner for the last four years, is expected to resign in time to enter the race for governor of Ohio next year.

Plans for placing the prohibition commissioner in the Ohio gubernatorial primaries are to be considered at an early conference in Washington. While it is regarded as almost certain that he will enter the campaign for the Republican nomination, formal announcement of his candidacy is not expected for several weeks, perhaps longer.

Haynes himself had no comment to make last night regarding his future plans. He clearly indicated, however, that a positive declaration at this time of his candidacy for the office in which Governor A. V. Whaley, Democrat, is serving a second term, would be premature.

Appointed by President Harding as prohibition commissioner, June 11, 1921, to succeed John F. Kramer, Haynes has served through a trying period of enforcement. Assuming office a year and a half after the country was declared constitutionally dry, he has had one obstacle after another to meet and has been the target of no little opposition in and out of congress. He has, however, survived numerous reports in the last year or so that he would be retired.

Commissioner Haynes is known to have desired to resign several times in the last half of his administration but on each occasion has been urged by the president to remain. President Coolidge, it is said, prevailed upon him to keep up of the Ohio gubernatorial fight last November, when he was prepared to run as the dry candidate, and he dropped his plans after James A. White, Columbus lawyer and former superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, became a candidate.

The attitude of Senator Willis, Republican, who is known to desire reelection, toward the entry of Mr. Haynes into the campaign for governor in the same primary in which he must run, is not known definitely, but they are old friends, and no opposition is expected from the senator.

Although his plans have not taken definite shape, it is said that Haynes expects to remain at his post long enough to see the new enforcement machinery being organized by assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury fairly under way.

The new plan, scheduled to take effect August 1, with gradual changes as conditions permit, provides the most radical re-organization of the enforcement efforts since prohibition became effective.

State lines will be abolished and control placed in 22 federal prohibition administrators scattered throughout the country in districts laid out according to federal judicial jurisdictions.

A report that Commissioner Haynes would resign or be retired was circulated a few weeks ago along with speculation as to what was contemplated by Andrews in plans for re-organization of the prohibition unit.

The official treasury announcement of the new zoning system, however, stated that the functions of Washington headquarters would be conducted under the same officers, although their duties would be less active and more supervisory in

CLOTHING CLUB OF SALT CREEK INDUSTRIOUS.

Girls are Active in Drafting Patterns and Cutting Out Dresses.

The fifth and sixth meetings of the Saltcreek Clothing Club were held on the 19th and 26th of the month at the school building. Sixteen members, and two visitors were present. Owing to the president being tardy, the work period was held before the business session. It included a demonstration on drafting a kimono dress pattern given by Nellie Ryan and later the first year girls drafted their dress patterns and cut out their dresses, while the second year girls worked on their slips.

During the business session plans were made for the club tour. Ruth and Hazel Fetherolf were appointed on the program committee. The meeting closed after playing several games. The next meeting will be held July 7.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Sunday, June 28, a number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elta W. Calvert of 801 Mohawk street, Columbus, in honor of Mr. Calvert's twenty-ninth birthday anniversary. He was given a complete surprise. All brought well filled baskets and a delicious dinner was served. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Calvert and son Jess, of Laurelville; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Drake and son, Mack, of Orient; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hudson and daughters, Jane and Mary, of Ashville; Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Praither, of Camp Chase; Mr. and Mrs. Will Gildersleeve, Mildred, Grace and Helen Calvert, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Skidmore and daughter, Iretha Mae, and son John Robert, of Waterloo; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. John Leonard, Mrs. O. A. Mace and daughter, Esther Mae, Mr. Hagans, Mr. and Mrs. Elta W. Calvert and son, Charles, and daughters Helen and Virginia, of Columbus. The afternoon was spent in visiting and taking pictures. All departed at a late hour wishing Mr. Calvert many more happy birthday anniversaries.

A miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Clara Leist, a bride-elect, was given by Miss Ruth DeLong and Mrs. Merrill M. Bowman at the latter's home, Friday, June 26th. The color scheme was pink and white. The guests consisted of relatives and friends of the bride. A number of useful presents were received.

The marriage of Miss Clara Leist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Leist, of Circleville, to Mr. Mark DeLong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeLong, of near Leistville, was solemnized Sunday afternoon, June 28th, 1925, at the Evangelical parsonage in Stoutsville. Rev. L. E. Hill, officiated. Miss Lucille Leist, sister of the bride, and Miss Ruth DeLong, sister of the groom, accompanied them to the parsonage. The bride was attired in a Copenhagen blue canton crepe dress with hat to match. The couple left immediately on a motor trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, returning by way of Pittsburgh. After July 5th, they will be at home to their friends at 407 East Mound street, this city.

Miss Marguerite Fohl is spending the week with Miss Hazel Palm, a student at O. S. U. summer school.

BETTER WORLD IS JUDGMENT OF NOTED MAN

Youth is More Intelligent and Has Much Reason for Present Revolt.

Cleveland, July 1.—(U.P.)—There is another side to the wall that jazz, gin and gasoline are wrecking modern youth; the wild life often brings youngsters to their senses.

This is the opinion of Common Pleas Judge Thomas M. Kennedy, just completing his twenty-third year on the bench.

"I am heartily in favor of youth in its present revolt," said the Judge. "Youth has plenty against which to revolt. The world is better than ever before and the younger generation is more intelligent."

"In spite of their so-called frailties I have no patience with their traducers."

The judge, himself, when a young man, revolted against old ideas. He ran away from home in England at the age of twelve, worked at many odd jobs and finally wound up in Cleveland where he attended Western Reserve University.

MRS. HARRIET McLELLAN

OLD IRONSIDES PRESERVED BY ORDER OF ELKS

Famous Frigate in Boston Harbor to be Saved by Dime Contributions.

Old Ironsides, the fighting frigate Constitution, is to be saved again from destruction, after 128 years' service in the U. S. navy.

Plans of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks to raise $300,000 for repair of the famous old ship, now rotting in Boston Harbor, where she was launched in 1797, were announced here yesterday by John G. Price, Columbus, grand exalted ruler. The task is undertaken at the request of Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, and the money is to come in 10-cent contributions from each of 2,000,000 school children and from each of the 1,000,000 members of the Elks' lodges in the nation.

No contribution of more than 10 cents will be accepted. A speaker is to visit every school in America and carry to the children the story of the famous old ship, first of the naval fleets, and a plea for help in saving her.

Final plans will be outlined at the grand lodge convention in Portland, Ore., next week. Announcement of the plan came in the last official letter Mr. Price will issue before he retires from office at the grand lodge session.

Congress last winter passed an act authorizing the rehabilitation of the old ship but failed to provide money for the work. Secretary Wilbur, however, is permitted to receive donations for the purpose. He asked the help of the Elks early in June, and the response was immediate.

"I am anxious to give the children the first opportunity as a patriotic lesson and an educational lesson," he wrote. "The B. P. O. E. has a great record for the welfare of the youth of our country."

It is a lesson that is closely woven into the history of the nation. Not only was the ship the first to be built by the United States after it became a nation, but its history is a thrilling story of romance and adventure.

From the October day in 1797 when she slid down the ways of Charles-town navy yard to the day a century later when she was towed back amid a patriotic demonstration, the Constitution has been seldom out of the public eye, and her record has written glowing pages into the annals of the navy.

She served as a training ship for the naval academy for many years. Finally she was no longer worth overhauling. In 1897 she was towed into Boston Harbor for the last time, and Henry Cabot Lodge delivered an eulogy in the celebration that greeted her.

Now the stout planking, water-logged and softened, masts and rigging long vanished, the old ship rocks idly at her moorings, a dead hulk, shrouded in memories of brave deeds. Another year or two would finish her.

The plans for her preservation include the building of a new hull under the ship and fitting her out as a patriotic shrine so she may last through at least another generation.

REVOLVER STOLEN

A revolver was stolen from the residence of Harry Betz in Ohio street last Monday night. The thief is probably the same person that Frank A. Lynch surprised in his residence in South Court street the same night, as the gun was found in the alley in the rear of the Lynch residence.

INDUSTRIES UNITE TO SAVE FORESTS

Board Is Named to Avert Lumber Waste.

Washington.—A nation-wide movement to conserve the lumber resources of the United States was started by the appointment of a conservation committee, of which Secretary Hoover has agreed to act as chairman. The committee is to make a thorough study of the wood-using industries and report at a conference to be held next fall. One of the big objects sought is to obtain closer co-operation in insuring full use of all timber cut.

The committee comprises representatives of the railways, the paper and pulp industry, purchasing agents of the country, wood-using industries, lumber manufacturers and retailers, architects and contractors, the American Engineering council and the national farmer organizations.

A preliminary conference, called by Secretary Hoover, has been in session here for some time and it was voted that definite action to bring about conservation was essential to the best interests of the nation. At the close of the conference the situation was summed up by John V. W. Reynolds of New York, who represented the American Engineering council.

"The United States," he said, "has been living in a fool's paradise. Foreign governments are studying economies, and unless we take the same step economy measures will be forced upon us. Industry must look at such problems from a national standpoint."

Voluntary Action.

Secretary Hoover explained what the Department of Commerce had been developing during the last three years with industry to eliminate waste. It has been found possible, he said, to obtain practical results by voluntary action, the function of the government being to bring together the industries that they might unite for such action as would serve the common interest.

Secretary Hoover said the fact that timber was being cut at a rate four times faster than it was being replaced, called for immediate and constructive action. The problem for the committee, he added, dealt with the problems faced in making for economy of use after the forest had become a commercial product.

Announcement was made by Mr. Hoover that an anonymous gift of $25,000 a year for two years had been received, to serve as the nucleus for financing the investigations which the committee will undertake. He recommended that the program of the committee take the form of day-to-day operations, with studies being made of specific industries to ascertain the full facts, and then to be considered from the standpoint of their relation with other industries, to the end that the by-products of one industry might be utilized wherever possible by another.

One of the faculty functions of the present-day commercial and industrial fabric, Secretary Hoover contended, was that industries had not been brought together to co-operate in the national interest. Such co-operation, he said, would not only bring economy of operation of industry, but would result in a more efficient use of raw materials.

Paper Industry.

A report on behalf of the American Paper and Pulp association was made by Norman W. Wilson, president of that organization. He said the paper and pulp industry was tackling the problem from two ends. More and more mills were employing foresters to secure expert treatment of the timber and to reproduce their wood supplies, he said. At the finishing end of the industry increasing attention was being given to research for new uses for by-products.

Hugh P. Baker of New York, secretary of the same organization, said that while the paper and pulp industry consumed 6,000,000 cords of wood annually, this was but 4 per cent of the timber cut in the United States. The value of paper products and paper goods is about $24,000,000,000.

The industry, he said, has two problems, one technical and the other commercial. In the technical field decay of wood and utilization of decayed woods has been combated by the forest products laboratory. Hardwoods were being used with success where they were not formerly usable and where a decade ago foresters regarded the hardwood trees as a nuisance.

Howard Andrews of Nashville, representing the National Association of Railroad Tie Producers, said that through the use of wood preservative the industry already had reduced the replacement of ties from a rate of 325 per mile in 1920 to 99 per mile in 1924.

Col. W. B. Greely of the federal forest service, who will act as vice chairman of the new conservation committee, argued for the establishment of some sort of clearing house and guiding agency to aid in the conservation desired.

Immense Water Project

The city of Manchester, England, has launched a water-power scheme which will cost $50,000,000. Haweswater, a little Westmoreland lake, is to be turned into a reservoir to hold 20,000,000,000 gallons of water, give a supply of 70,000,000 gallons daily, and thus solve Manchester's water problem for a hundred years. To do this will take ten years and involve the building of an aqueduct 84 miles long. Haweswater is 100 feet above Thirlmere, from which Manchester is at present drawing water, but it will have to be raised 90 feet. The picturesque valley of Mardale Green will be submerged under the new Haweswater, but the quaint old village church is to be rebuilt on higher ground.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On Carrying Checks Around

"Have you heard about the trouble Jim Sykes is in, Aunt Emmy?" asked Molly, who dearly loved to talk about her neighbors.

"Why, no," answered Aunt Emmy; "what is it?"

"Well, Aunt, you know how proud he was to get that building job from Mr. Parker. He needed the money so much. When it was finished Mr. Parker gave him a check for $3,000. Of course Jim had obligated himself to pay a lot of that out for materials and things. Well, you know what an old slow poke Jim Sykes is. Instead of taking the check to the bank right away he carried it around in his pocket and then poor Mr. Parker died. Now he must wait until Mr. Parker's estate is settled, and that may be a couple of years before he can cash the check. Poor Jim, isn't it a shame!"

"It's too bad," agreed Aunt Emmy, "but quite in keeping with most folks' carelessness about money. People should be prompt in depositing checks. Aside from such a serious thing as a death, an undeposited check is a nuisance to lots of people. Banks and business houses keep their books carefully balanced. At the end of a month a check that has been issued has not been put through for collection it means a lot of unnecessary bookkeeping for the person who issued the check and for the bank."

"Then, too, there is the danger of loss. People often write their names across the back of a check and then carry it around for a day or two before banking it. An indorsed check is as negotiable as money. To be safe always indorse it to your bank. Write 'Pay to the Order of —' then the name of your bank and below that sign your name. That protects the check from being used, if it should get out of your hands. But never waste any time about depositing checks you receive."

"Not after what happened to Jim and after hearing you tell me all these things, Aunt!" said Molly. "I'd be scared to keep a check a minute more than necessary."—Anne B. Aymes.

DISPOSES IN 282 WORDS OF THE BANK GUARANTEE LAW

"Understand bank deposit guaranty being proposed in your legislature," telegraphed R. B. Clark, president of the Bank of Tupelo, Miss., to Paul R. Brown, Secretary of the North Carolina Bankers Association. "Such a law in any form is a snare and a delusion. It is license and encouragement to irresponsible banks and banking and penalizes capital solvency and prudent banking. It creates a sense of security in the minds of the unthinking and uninformed that is false and impossible to be realized on ultimately. It tends to debauch one's right and duty to be thoughtful and discriminating. To compare it to legitimate insurance is without reason and absurd. It jeopardizes the solvency of all banks and the safety of all depositors for the theoretical safety of a few. We have had it ten years, and the fund is hopelessly in arrears. Have been fighting for repeal and have made progress. Only repeal can save our state system of banks. Many of the best are nationalizing even now. Guaranty schemes always have been, and are always will be impotent, futile and disastrous. Consider Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska, Mississippi and others. It is not new. Has been tried, failed and discarded at intervals for more than 100 years in this country. No well-informed, honest and intelligent mind can accept it in principle or practice. Well paid intelligently competent supervision, restriction of banks to territory that will warrant sufficient capital investment and encourage surplus accounts is the only sane and honest course and will afford all the guaranty the depositing public is entitled to as compared with all other human affairs. Arouse your people and crush the misguided effort for all time. To do so will be worth whatever it may cost, and the value will be to your people generally more than to the banks."

The bill was reported unfavorably.

PITFALLS FOR THE UNWARY

Seek Bankers' Advice on Foreign Bonds, Says Department of Commerce.

American investors in securities of foreign companies and foreign governments should take care to purchase them only through reliable bankers or brokers, says Commerce Reports issued by the Department of Commerce. It adds:

"There have recently been several flagrant cases of securities being advertised in American journals at prices from 10 to 100 times the price quoted on the same date in the markets of the countries where the concerns are located. Some of these cases have even attracted the attention of foreign newspapers. This is not a safe kind of speculation for uninformed Americans, but the would-be investor can easily protect himself by asking the advice of his regular banker."

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milk cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

HIGHWAY MARKER HELPS MOTORIST

Standard Signs Are Best Solution of Vexing Cross-road Puzzle.

The American Indian, when he went over a new or unfamiliar trail, retraced his steps by following bent or broken twigs left on his previous trip. This was the first road sign used in this country. Following the Indian came the white man who erected picturesque sign posts, and later, enduring mile-stones to mark the routes of hardy travelers of stagecoach days. And now we are concerned with adequate road signs to meet the needs of motorists.

Solve Crossroad Puzzle.
This is a problem which may well engage the attention of highway engineers. While there are maps and road guides in abundance for the tourist, the plainly marked, easily read standard highway markers along the trunk line highways in some of the states are the best solutions to the crossroad puzzles the motorist is called upon to solve at almost every fork of the road or intersection.

There are still far too many localities where the choice of the right road is left mainly to chance. Many motorists who have driven over a strange road have had the experience of suddenly coming to a fork in the road.

Standard Road Sign.

Both of which seem to be equally traveled, and not a sign in sight to point out the right road. All states have not made adequate progress in highway marking and county roads are marked in only a comparatively few communities.

Appreciate Service.
Motor tourists are quick to appreciate highway service. There is no better way for a highway department to "sell" itself to the public than through just such activities as highway marking and providing dependable touring information.

It has been found unsatisfactory to allow any unofficial organization to take over this work. It is well recognized that in communities where the highways are marked with standard signs by the highway department in charge of the roads, motorists are sure to heed the notices of caution or danger. They know that such signs warn of a danger that really exists, and are not placed merely to frighten them into reading an advertisement.

Keep Fan Belt Tight to Prevent Any Slipping

The fan belt on the average car is a good example of the importance of knowing what's right for your own particular car, sifting promiscuous advice accordingly.

Some people will tell you not to keep your fan belt too tight, since such a plan will result in stretching it unduly, thus keeping it loose. That's good enough advice for some fans and some belts, but it doesn't apply in every case.

If a belt is flat and narrow, for instance, and runs on a flat and narrow pulley, it has to be tight all the time, otherwise it will slip. The owner has to use a type of belt that will not stretch to any extent after it has worked in.

When Springs Break

A broken spring may lead to serious trouble or even an accident, when experienced on the road if the driver attempts to reach the nearest garage without taking some steps to safeguard his car.

Probably the simplest way to make a quick temporary repair on a spring which is fractured through all the leaves consists in jacking up the frame slightly above its normal height above the axle, cutting a heavy piece of wood—a section of fence rail will serve in an emergency—to fit loosely between them and then letting the frame down on top of it. After the wood has been bound securely in place with rope, straps, wire or cable—non-skid chains sometimes come in handy for this purpose—it will be safe to proceed at moderate speed to the nearest repair station.

Increased Motor Speed

Now Blamed on Oxygen

Motor cars of all kinds have long been known to gather speed in some unaccountable manner when passing over smooth paved roads. The cause has long been unexplained, but it is now held, both by automotive engineers and road engineers, to be due to the abnormal profusion of vegetation usually to be found along these "mystery" roads. Trees and plants exude oxygen. Motors run more smoothly when there is plenty of oxygen in the air, as motorists are well aware. The increased amount of oxygen diffused in the localities where the vegetation is profuse, coupled with the smoothness of the road surfaces and the consequent decrease in tractive resistance, constitutes the cause of the "picking up" of the motor and the increased speed. Scientists recently conducted experiments in several localities, and along roads bordered by heavy vegetation, and these experiments demonstrated to their complete satisfaction that the behavior of the car was due to the increased amount of oxygen in the air.

Physician Warns Driver to Relax While Driving

Don't grip your steering wheel too tightly when you drive a car, or you may get neuritis in your shoulders, warns Riley D. Moore, osteopathic physician, writing in American Motorist.

"The prolonged tension and undue jarring transmitted to the shoulders may develop neuritis," he says. "Do not lean with your elbows on the wheel, for long at a time, for like reasons."

Doctor Moore says also: "The driver of a car should be alert but not tense, rigid. If you cannot relax, begin at once to learn how. If you are tense from nervousness and fear when driving, and cannot overcome it in a reasonable length of time, you'd better stop driving. If you do not, you will wreck your nervous system and in emergency likely wreck your car and a life as well."

It is cheaper to have the brakes re-lined than to wear the lining down to a point where the bands have to be replaced as well.

Excess Engine Heating Traced to Kink in Hose

On one occasion, excess heating of an engine finally was traced to a kink in the rubber hose leading to the radiator. It had become heated several times and weakened the walls, so that in making a rather sharp curve it collapsed, partially shutting off the flow.

This was remedied permanently by removing the hose and inserting a coil spring made of rather stiff wire, wrapped about a broom handle. When freed this spring was slightly larger than the inside diameter of the hose but was inserted by turning the spring in the direction that the wire was wrapped when it was made, in the meantime being forced in. This straightened the kink, and it has not bothered since.

This method of reinforcing and strengthening various sizes and kinds of rubber hose and tubing also works well in all sorts of instances. In making sharp turns and bends, tubing for gas lights tends to collapse, and this can be remedied effectively by this method.

Yes and No

Tommy had been looking forward to Wednesday, on which day the druggist promised to give all the children a bird with each chocolate soda. Wednesday arrived and Tommy hurried to the drug store so he would get his "prize" before they were all gone. When he paid his check he looked at the clerk and asked whether he might have his bird. "Why," answered the man behind the counter, "You got a swallow, didn't you?"

It was a very sad but a very impressive lesson to Tommy. He decided the old saying, "nothing for nothing" was the truest ever spoken.—Indianapolis News.

Gentle Hint

Booth Tarkington was talking about a prolific novelist. "He turns out trilogies and psycho-analysis romances and new thought tales by the score," Mr. Tarkington said, "but the more he turns out the less he sells." "I think I'll go to the South seas or somewhere," he said in a discouraged voice the other day to a critic. "Yes, I think I'll go off and rest up for a year." "I suppose," said the critic politely—"I suppose your public is beginning to suffer from writer's cramp, eh?"

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

The Logan Elm Food Club, of Pickaway township, held their regular meeting June 26, at the school house. The session was called to order by the president, Margaret McKenzie and the secretary's report was then read.

The members answered roll call by telling of something new they had done, since the last meeting.

During the business period, plans were made for the club tour, July 9. Our leader, Mrs. Young, gave a discussion on "Real Helpfulness at Home."

(a) Need of Promptness.
(b) Importance of Being Dependable.

A demonstration on "Measuring Flour" was then given by Mabel Dumm.

Following this a short, but interesting program was given by the committee, Mary Elizabeth Rader and Alice Kibler.

The next meeting will be held on Friday afternoon, July 31, at the home of Marvina Kiger.

Delicate Instrument

There will shortly leave America an expedition that will travel half round the earth and will take daily measurements of the heat of the sun in the interest of long-range weather forecasting. It will occupy four years, in this task. The instrument that will be used is a radiometer invented by the late Dr. E. F. Nichols.

This radiometer is so sensitive that the ray of a candle situated 7,000 feet away and focused upon it is sufficient to turn its vanes through several hundred scale divisions. Even the face of an observer, when placed in the position previously occupied by the candle, will produce a deflection of 25 scale divisions.

It has been suggested by a humorist that with this instrument one might almost note the approach of a friend, while still some miles distant, merely by the glow of his countenance. It might even detect the sun in an English summer.—London Tit-Bits.

Everything Running

One of the funniest things that ever came up in Judge Summerfield's court was a suit for the annulment of a marriage, instituted by an irate father.

It seems that the young couple, though their intentions had been suspected, had managed to elude the vigilance of their elders in a manner worthy of record.

"Yes, sir," cried the father, in giving his testimony. "The young scoundrel bored a hole in the water pipe, and while I was holdin' my finger over it an' waitin' for the plumber, darned if he didn't grab my gal and light out for the preacher."—Los Angeles Times.

KEEPING WELLBRIGHT'S DISEASEDR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"NEARLY one hundred years ago, an English doctor, Richard Bright, wrote a paper for a medical journal, in which he described certain symptoms which he had found were associated with definite changes in the kidneys. Since 1827, this condition has been known as Bright's disease.

Bright found that, in all cases of this disease, both the kidneys were affected. They were small and hard, the part of the kidney which does the work of excreting the urine from the blood was much smaller than it should be and the kidney was largely made up of tough scar tissue, showing that the kidneys had for years been subject to prolonged irritation.

Along with this change in the kidneys are changes in other organs. The arteries become hard and thick; the heart, which has to force the blood through these stiff and narrowed tubes, has become enlarged, especially the left side, which pumps the blood throughout the body. This produces a high blood pressure.

The symptoms caused by this condition are not sudden and marked, but come on so slowly as to be hardly noticeable. The peculiar thing about them is that they apparently have nothing to do with the kidneys. A popular belief, largely due to patent medicine advertisements, is that pain in the back is an early symptom of Bright's disease. This is not true. Most people who think that they have Bright's disease, have no kidney disease at all. Many people who do not suspect it, have it, or are in the early stages of it. Even an advanced case may be entirely unconscious of it and may possess great mental and physical ability. It is this very insidiousness that makes Bright's disease such a danger to middle age.

How does this disease show itself? In a general feeling of poor health. The patient is tired, sleeps poorly, has frequent headaches and digestive disturbances. The tongue is coated. The patient has to get up, sometimes several times a night to empty the bladder. The amount of urine is increased and there is constant thirst. Attacks of bronchitis are common and the patient suffers from breathlessness, especially after walking briskly or climbing stairs. There is often trouble with the eyes. The skin is dry and the perspiration scanty. Sometimes the ankles will swell or the skin under eyes will puff up.

These symptoms, especially in men and women of middle age, are danger signals and should call for an immediate and careful physical examination. Don't wait for them to become worse. Find out now what the trouble is and how far it has gone.

Sunday's ScoresAt Circleville—Circleville 5, Wilmington 3.
At Washington—Washington 5, London 4 (12 innings).

The Eagle team took the odd game from Wilmington Sunday afternoon, in a rather draggy game by a score of 5 to 3. The game looked very much like a shut out, but the visitors got busy in the ninth inning and put across three runs, all three men crossing the plate after two were out.

Dewey pitched a good, steady game, keeping the hits well scattered, up to the ninth when the visitors put on their belated rally. Wilmington also got in three safe blows in the third, but a fine return on the third hit by Donahue in right field cut off a run at the plate for the third out.

The Circleville infield indulged in an off-day contributing three wobbles, which fortunately had no bearing on the score.

Circleville made the most of all their opportunities, scoring five runs with an equal number of hits, which were mixed up with the visitors' misdeeds, and such free passes as were contributed by Pitcher Feike.

In the second inning Pettit, the first man up, was hit by a pitched ball and stole. Os. Miller and Donahue were walked and Pettit scored on a passed ball.

In the third Allen was hit by a pitched ball, Targee doubled to left and both men scored on Pettit's line drive to center.

In the fourth Thompson got a life on Botts' error, went to second while Donahue was being retired and scored on Dewey's hit. The final Circleville run came in the fifth; Pettit hit another sharp drive to the outfield, stole second and scored when Os. Miller's hit got past Davis in left field.

The Wilmington team secured their three runs in the final session. Bath secured the only free pass given by Dewey during the game, after Davis had struck out, Reardon hit a hot one down the third base line, which Thompson knocked down, but could not recover in time to retire the batter. Feike sacrificed to Dewey, Walton hit safely and went to third while an unsuccessful attempt was made to cut off Reardon who followed Bath over the plate. Murphy hit safe, scoring Walton and D. Botts hit to Dewey who threw him out at first for the final out of the game.

On next Sunday the Circleville team will play at London, and on the following Sunday Washington will play at Circleville.

The Circleville team suffered a severe loss during the past week when Outfielder McGrainer was signed by the Columbus Senators. However the Circleville fans will all be broad minded enough to hope that Mac will make good. The loss will be mitigated to a great extent by the acquisition of Ridgway, who played a nice game in center field, and while he did not secure a safe hit he strikes like he knew how and will get his share of the hits before the season is over.

Mother Commutes Over Sea

Mrs. Maren Christensen, who has eight children and a husband in Denmark and seven children living in the United States, will "commute" every six months or so between the two countries in order to spend a portion of her time with the two groups forming her family. The Christensens decided two years ago to come to America to live, but were frustrated in their plans because of the immigration quota difficulties. She was informed, however, that she could visit for six months in each year and thereupon she made her plans to "commute" every now and then until such time as the entire family can enter the country.

GUARDSMEN

AT A. C. PARK
ON DEER CREEK

Bathing and Boating With Plenty Shade and Swings Tables for Lunch.

Company M, O. N. G., of Washington C. H., will go into camp at A. C. PARK on Deer creek at the foot of Dublin Hill, nine miles south of Mt. Sterling, four miles northwest of Williamsport, and six miles northeast of New Holland, July 3rd, for the purpose of target practice and staging an imaginary battle.

The program will be target practice, and other features throughout the Fourth, battle at night, and qualification tests on the fifth. Three stirring events.

The battle, which represents a defense of an enemy attack, will be quite spectacular in every feature.

During the progress of the battle, there will be put to actual use smoke barrage, tracer bullets and illuminating rockets.

Machine guns will be brought to effective action against the rugged escarpment.

How many ever seen a machine gun battery in action? The Rainbow boys, who risked so much in France have and Co., M. O. M. G. is composed of members of the Famous Rainbow division.

This is to demonstrate a night attack under battle conditions, as real as peace time conditions can make it.

The public is cordially invited to witness our country's defenders in action.

This park affords bathing and boating facilities, with shade and parking space. Swings, seats and tables for lunches are convenient on the ground, also refreshments and lunch stand. Admission, only 10 cents.

AMUSEMENTS

Something new for Meighan. That's what Paramount claims for "Coming Through," Tom's new production which comes to the Metropolitan today.

The story is an adaptation of the novel, "Bed Rock," by Jack Bethea. Lila Lee is leading woman and Wallace Beery, Lorraine Wheat, John Milner, Frank Campeau and others play in support. It is a tale of the Alabama coal mines, written for the screen by Paul Schofield and directed by Edward Sutherland.

The star is cast in the role of Tom Blackford, chief clerk of a great steel corporation. He has been promised promotion to the job of Superintendent of Mines, but on the eve of his appointment he learns that he has been shelved to make room for the Treasurer's nephew. This is not the first time he has been denied advancement because some official's relative wanted the job, and reflection on his thwarted ambition makes him bitter at the president and the whole system.

Then destiny plays swiftly into his hands. He meets Alice Rand (Miss Lee), daughter of the president and wins her in a whirlwind courtship. They are married secretly. When Alice tells Rand about the wedding he is furious. He accuses Blackford of being a fortune hunter, of deliberately tricking the girl into marriage to further his own ambitions. When the girl asserts that they are truly in love, Rand offers to prove his point. He hides Alice in an alcove, sends for Blackford and traps him into admitting his ulterior motive.

Heartbroken and disillusioned, Alice turns against her husband. Blackford is shipped to Colton, the toughest of tough mining camps. Here, overcoming obstacle after obstacle, he puts up the fight of his life to make good and prove himself worthy of the girl's love.

Dorothy Fohl and Rosemary Hamel are visiting Miss Mildred Louden in Columbus.

Dickey was unlike most children and loved his morning bath. One morning his nurse told him to hurry and jump into the tub. Dickey was all smiles until he saw the water in which he was to bathe. There had been a fire in the neighborhood and the water was a rusty brown. Dickey looked at his nurse, and pleadingly said: "You're not going to make me take my 'bath' in soup, are you?"

Dickey's "bath" was postponed until afternoon.—Indianapolis News.

MAKING MONEY FIT BUSINESS

When Times Are Active the Supply Increases—Contraction Follows Seasonal and Periodic Slackening.

New York. — Demonstration that complete elasticity has been imparted to the currency in the United States by the Federal Reserve System despite assertions to the contrary is given in the American Bankers Association Journal by W. Randolph Burgess, assistant agent at the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

"Of all the money in circulation in the United States, Federal Reserve notes now make up almost one-half," he says in part. "In 1920 they were 70 per cent. The increase in currency which the war and high world prices made necessary was provided almost wholly by Federal Reserve notes. Just as the increase was wholly through Federal Reserve notes, so again the decrease was altogether in Federal Reserve notes. Reserve notes in circulation decreased from $3,300,000,000 in November, 1920, to $1,700,000,000 in March, 1925. Between the same dates other currency increased from $1,500,000,000 to $2,300,000,000, due to an increase in gold certificates.

"There are still some few who produce theoretical arguments to show that for some reason the Federal Reserve note is not elastic. These various arguments raise interesting questions, but they make little headway against the facts. For the facts show that the Federal Reserve note has been elastic.

How Currency Changes Volume
"The amount of currency the country requires reflects changing prices, wage levels, employment and volume of trade. As an example, retail trade at Christmas time is always larger than at other times. This results in a considerable increase in the need for hand to hand currency. Currency withdrawals and receipts at the Federal Reserve Banks illustrate the way this special demand was met. Prior to Christmas there was paid out about $300,000,000 of currency, all of which was returned to the bank within the two or three weeks following Christmas.

"The mechanism is that when Federal Reserve member banks need currency for their customers they draw it from the Reserve Bank. Member banks can secure additional currency by borrowing at the Reserve Bank. Conversely, whenever currency in circulation becomes larger than is required by business it begins to return to the banks and they immediately utilize it to pay off indebtedness at the Reserve Banks, on which they are paying interest.

"The Federal Reserve System has made all types of currency, except national bank notes, elastic because all except those notes can be issued in amounts required and they all tend to flow back to the Reserve Bank when they are not required. There is another phase of currency elasticity. A $100 Federal Reserve note may represent only $40 in gold, because a gold reserve of only 40 per cent is required against Federal Reserve notes. On the other hand, a $100 gold certificate must represent $100 in gold. Thus the Federal Reserve Banks can issue, in response to commercial demand, two and one-half times as many Federal Reserve notes as gold certificates before the reserve ratio reaches the legal minimum.

Secondary Stretch
"This secondary elasticity was illustrated during the war, when in response to war demands Federal Reserve notes were issued to the amount of $3,405,000,000. The Federal Reserve System could have issued more than $800,000,000 additional without lowering the reserve against notes below 40 per cent, or the reserve against deposits below 35 per cent. In any emergency the power to issue these notes increases by 150 per cent the amount of cash which might be supplied to the country.

"Federal Reserve currency has proved itself flexible in war expansion and in post-war reductions. Since the establishment of the System the currency has been responsive to the seasonal and emergency needs of business. The Federal Reserve Act obtained currency elasticity by placing the country's reserve cash in institutions not organized for profit, from which currency might be withdrawn or to which it might be returned in response to the country's needs. While the existence of the Reserve System gives flexibility to almost all forms of currency, the Federal Reserve notes, secured in part by commercial paper, provides a possible secondary expansion in readiness for an emergency."

SUPPLYING THE NATION'S CHANGE

Supplying the wealthiest nation in the world with change is a job of tremendous proportions. During 1924 the United States mints struck off 89,394,000 one cent pieces and 28,315,000 nickels. The small change of the nation was enlarged by 37,940,000 dimes and 16,892,000 quarters. While a drive was started to popularize the silver dollar, only 13,539,000 of the "silver cartwheels" were coined. Singularly, the half-dollar is the most unpopular coin that the United States makes. During 1925 there were just 142,080 half-dollars struck off, and all of these were the commemorative Huguenot-Walloon coins. The mints coined 10,300,500 double eagles.

Bob Meusel Praised as Greatest of Fielders

"When he wants to be Bob Meusel is the greatest outfielder baseball has ever produced," says Joe Bush, veteran star pitcher, formerly with the Yankees, now with the St. Louis Browns.

"When I say this, I am not unkind of Cobb, the wonder player, the great Speaker, and the brilliant Eddie Roush, as well as other stars I have seen in action.

"Very fast, using a long stride that has him going at full speed after taking a few steps, Meusel is without a peer in covering ground.

"In addition to his ground-covering ability, his judgment of distance is uncanny, and he has the greatest throwing arm in baseball.

"One must play on the same club as Meusel to really appreciate him. He has saved dozens of ball games for me by seemingly impossible catches or marvelous throws.

"If Bob was aggressive, had more spirit, he would be more talked about than Cobb, Roush or Speaker as outfielders."

A boy doesn't mind being bossed if he can see the sense of it.

Improved Methods
on Cattle Ranges
Land May Be Made Still
More Productive.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Although farming has been making inroads on the pasture lands of the Western range area for the past 30 years, it is still the great beef reservoir of the country. That there are many ways in which this native grassland may be made still more productive, is brought out by the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 1395, Beef-Cattle Production in the Range Area, just issued.

The range area is described as that region, west of the one hundredth meridian, where cattle and sheep are produced largely on native grasses, a region which takes in about 45 per cent of the total land area of this country. There is, of course, no sharp dividing line, but in a strip varying in width from 75 to 150 miles along the meridian there is a general tendency from east to west to devote less land to farming and more to pastures. During the past 30 years an increasing percentage of the land within the range area has been devoted to farming, the result of better crop adaptation, better methods of conserving rainfall, and irrigation.

The bulletin covers the various problems of the range cattle producer, including management of the breeding herd, handling cattle on the range, native forage plants, prevention of loss from poisonous plants, parasites and diseases, selection of bulls and cows, improvement of ranching properties and increasing the beef-producing capacity of pastures.

It is said that the range area contributes nearly 40 per cent of the nation's beef cattle. Corn-belt beef finishers are dependent on this region to a large extent for their feeders.

Do Not Plant Trees Too
Close in Home Orchards

Standard trees placed at standard distances are better for the small home orchard than dwarfs or crowded trees, said Prof. Joseph Oskamp, of the pomology department of the New York State College of Agriculture on February 9, at Farmers' week. Filler trees or small fruits can be planted the standard trees for early returns, he says, as apple trees should be planted 40 or 50 feet apart.

Most growers are inclined to plant too much, and discourage themselves by the size of their orchard, says Professor Oskamp. One tree of each variety is sufficient, or even one tree on which has been top-grafted two or three other varieties.

Small fruits may be grown with less trouble by one who desires fruit for home use. Strawberries, red raspberries, purple canes, blackcaps and blackberries, with a few gooseberries and currants make up a good small garden for home fruits.

Nearly all red raspberries in New York state are infected with mosaic disease, according to Professor Oskamp, and anyone planning to plant them should first consult the New York Fruit Testing association at Geneva. Professor Oskamp states that it is not generally a wise policy to trust all traveling tree agents who call at your door, but it is better to get your plants through an old and reliable nursery.

Yellow Transparent is one of the best early varieties of apple. This can be followed by Early Harvest, Red Astrachan, Sweet Bough, and McIntosh. Rhode Island Greening and Northern Spy or Baldwin are late varieties for winter storage.

Stock on Small Farm

On the small farm, hogs are probably the most profitable individual item in the live stock, particularly when they are kept along with a small herd of dairy cows. One very successful farmer on 80 acres maintains from three to five dairy cows, enough young cattle to maintain his herd, and from five to eight brood sows, from which he raises fifty to seventy pigs each year. He also has about a hundred hens and the necessary work animals.

FARM FACTS

One good apple suggests another to the consumer.

It's time to prune the grapevines if you want the largest yields and the finest fruit.

The presence of certain weeds, such as sour dock or yellow sorrel, indicate an acid condition.

A grease coating on plowshares and mold board comes off a great deal easier than a rust coating.

If your cauliflower didn't pan out as an early summer crop, try fall planting. Sometimes it doesn't do well early in the season.

In small gardens where intensive fertilizing and cultivation is simple, the rows need not be as far apart as in larger gardens. Eighteen inches is ample for most of the vegetables.

The taller-growing vegetables, such as corn and pole beans, are usually placed toward the westerly portion of the garden, because they will cast shade then only during the hottest portion of the day.

Dinner to Lafayette
Marked by Hilarity

A subscription dinner was, on Tuesday, given at Matthew Wilson's hotel by a number of the members of the legislature to General Lafayette, pursuant to arrangements previously made by Dr. Kitchen of the senate and Messrs. Gilleland and Meredith of the house of representatives, the committee appointed for that purpose by the subscribers. His excellency, the governor, General Lafayette, the heads of departments, Judge Gibson, Mr. G. W. Lafayette, Mr. Levascur, the committee from New York in attendance upon the general and a few veterans of the Revolution, residents of this place, were present as guests. Mr. Speaker Marks presided and was assisted by Mr. Speaker Sutherland and Mr. Roberts of the house of representatives. About 120 gentlemen sat down to the dinner, which was served at a little after four o'clock. The dinner was an excellent one, says a report in the Harrisburg Chronicle, February 3, 1825.

The most cordial hilarity prevailed throughout the whole entertainment, in the course of which, at the particular and repeated request of the general, "Hail Columbia" was sung by himself and the whole company standing. The governor and General Lafayette retired at about eight o'clock and the company broke up shortly afterwards. At 11 o'clock on Wednesday General Lafayette took his departure for York.

Momentous Meeting

The first session of the Continental congress was held in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphia, September 5, 1774, with 44 members present; all the colonies were represented except Georgia and North Carolina. Peyton Randolph of Virginia was president, and Charles Thomson was secretary.

Actor's Ready Wit

As a young man, Walter Prichard Eaton had the good fortune to hear the famous comedian, Peter F. Dailey, spring one of his best impromptu jokes during a barbershop performance of "The Merry Widow."

In his book, "The Actor's Heritage," he describes the scene in which Dailey is leaving a restaurant where the prices were something terrific. As he was making his exit, the comedian accidentally stepped on something and started to fall. Being an extremely heavy man, there was actual danger. The other players sprang to catch him and the audience gasped. But he lighted himself and then in silence stooped down and picked up a tiny object on which he slipped.

The play stopped. In an expectant silence, Dailey drew out a pocketbook, counted the money in it and then deposited the total sum in the head waiter's hands.

"Here," he said, "is $12. I stepped on a bean."

Chinaman Takes Meals
at His Convenience

Among the working class of China, as well as many other countries of the Far and Near East, eating is an outdoor sport. Summer and winter they take their food from little open air side restaurants, and chopstick it into their mouths, sometimes standing and sometimes sitting, either in the street or in a doorless, windowless shelter beside the street.

The eating goes on continuously. This does not mean of course that every workman eats all day long—as it might seem—but each workman eats when he can, and the restaurants are busy every hour of the day, knowing no separate time for lunch, breakfast, dinner or supper. On the main street there are restaurants every few steps, a dozen or so to the block.

Then there are the walking kitchens. One man carries on a pole slung over his shoulder, a cook stove suspended from one end, and a pantry with a counter on top of it on the other end. He moves his stand from time to time, going where business is best for the moment, now in front of a factory, now in front of a school, now on a busy corner, almost anywhere.

The keepers of the large restaurants, by way of advertising, establish their bakeries right beside the street in full view of the perhaps hungry passers-by. The baker, a mighty man is he, standing beside his two-by-two monument of dirt, kneading a mountain of dust-grayed dough, then beating it out flat with a stick, like a lusty drummer-lad beating a charge to battle.

Origin of "A No. 1"

So far as known, this originated in the classification of wooden ships by Lloyd's, the English insurance association. According to their classification, A 1 or A No. 1 indicated that the equipment and ship were in first-class condition.

Sue Hitler Estate.

Four legatees under the will of Nelson Hitler have filed suits in common pleas court against George Steely, surviving executor of the estate of Nelson Hitler, deceased.

The plaintiffs are Rosa Walters,
Maud E. Roof, Alice E. Chamberlain
and Hale I. Lutz. Individual cases
have been filed in which each plaintiff
asks judgment for $4,628.66 with interest at 6 per cent from September 4, 1924.

In their petition they aver that
Nelson Hitler died January 31, 1917,
and that his last will was admitted to
probate February 7, 1917.

Thomas L. Hitler and George
Steely were appointed executors and
the former died December 22, 1920.

The testator bequeathed $12,000 to each plaintiff and no part of which
was paid within one year from and after February 8, 1917. They claim that the legacy bore interest from
that date until paid.

The surviving executor made a
first payment of $4,000 on March 29,
1924, and on September 4, 1924, paid
a further sum of $8,000 thereon, but has wholly neglected and failed and
refused to pay the residue thereof
and that there was due and payable
as interest on the legacies due plaintiffs at the time of the last payment
the sum of $4,628.66, to each one, for which each asks judgment and interest.

Charles Gerhardt and Barton Walters represent the plaintiffs.

Suits For Money.

Florence Ludwig and E. May Lutz
have each filed civil action in common
pleas court against George Steely,
surviving executor of the Nelson Hitler estate and each asks for $4,628.66
with interest at six per cent from September 4, 1924.

The testator bequeathed $12,000 to
each plaintiff and no part of which
was paid within one year from and after February 8, 1917. They claim that the legacy bore interest from
that date until paid.

The legacies of $12,000 each have
been paid but plaintiffs each claim
$4,628.66 as interest.

Charles Gerhardt and Barton Walters represent the plaintiffs.

Ida Lerch has also filed suit against
the executor of the estate of Nelson
Hitler, deceased, for the same time
as in the cases named above, for the sum of $739, as interest on a $2,000
legacy.

C. A. Leist represents the plaintiff.

Trade Tricks

Senator Magnus Johnson, the Minnesota dirt farmer, said in a Kimball
speech:

"There are tricks in every trade.
The farmer is an honest man—an honest man if ever there was one—yet
there are tricks even in farming.

"An old farmer once said to me
in my youth:

"Never auction off a field of grain
except in windy weather."

"No? Why not?" said I.

"Gosh, you're green, young fellow,"
said the farmer. "Don't you know
that when a grain field's waving in the wind it looks ever so much thicker?
Because then, of course, you see the same head three or four times over."

The Day

"Lez see! This is Saturday, ha'n't

"I reckon so," replied Gap Johnson
of Rumpus Ridge. "I seed wife

ROY HAYNES CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

PROHIBITION CHIEF WILL RESIGN PLACE TO MAKE RACE

Is Ambitious to Serve as Ohio's Executive, Abandoned Plans Last Year When James A. White Entered the List—Will Remain At Post Long Enough to See New Enforcement Machinery Organized.

Roy A. Haynes, federal prohibition commissioner for the last four years, is expected to resign in time to enter the race for governor of Ohio next year.

Plans for placing the prohibition commissioner in the Ohio gubernatorial primaries are to be considered at an early conference in Washington. While it is regarded as almost certain that he will enter the campaign for the Republican nomination, formal announcement of his candidacy is not expected for several weeks, perhaps longer.

Haynes himself had no comment to make last night regarding his future plans. He clearly indicated, however, that a positive declaration at this time of his candidacy for the office in which Governor A. W. Mahey, Democrat, is serving a second term, would be premature.

Appointed by President Harding as prohibition commissioner, June 11, 1921, to succeed John F. Kramer, Haynes has served through a trying period of enforcement. Assuming office a year and a half after the country was declared constitutionally dry, he has had one obstacle after another to meet and has been the target of no little opposition in and out of congress. He has, however, survived numerous reports in the last year or so that he would be retired.

Commissioner Haynes is known to have desired to resign several times in the last half of his administration but on each occasion has been urged by the president to remain. President Coolidge, it is said, prevailed upon him to keep up of the Ohio gubernatorial fight last November, when he was prepared to run as the dry candidate, and he dropped his plans after James A. White, Columbus lawyer and former superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Salon League, became a candidate.

The attitude of Senator Willis, Republican, who is known to desire reelection, toward the entry of Mr. Haynes into the campaign for governor in the same primary in which he must run, is not known definitely, but they are old friends, and no opposition is expected from the senator.

Although his plans have not taken definite shape, it is said that Haynes expects to remain at his post long enough to see the new enforcement machinery being organized by assistant Secretary Andrews of the treasury fairly under way.

The new plan, scheduled to take effect August 1, with gradual changes as conditions permit, provides the most radical re-organization of the enforcement efforts since prohibition became effective.

State lines will be abolished and control placed in 22 federal prohibition administrators scattered throughout the country in districts laid out according to federal judicial jurisdictions.

A report that Commissioner Haynes would resign or be retired was circulated a few weeks ago along with speculation as to what was contemplated by Andrews in plans for re-organization of the prohibition unit.

The official treasury announcement of the new zoning system, however, stated that the functions of Washington headquarters would be conducted under the same officers, although their duties would be less active and more supervisory in nature.

CLOTHING CLUB OF SALT CREEK INDUSTRIOUS.

Girls are Active in Drafting Patterns and Cutting Out Dresses.

The fifth and sixth meetings of the Saltcreek Clothing Club were held on the 19th and 26th of the month at the school building. Sixteen members, and two visitors were present. Owing to the president being tardy, the work period was held before the business session. It included a demonstration on drafting a kimono dress pattern given by Nellie Ryan and later the first year girls drafted their dress patterns and cut out their dresses, while the second year girls worked on their slips.

During the business session plans were made for the club tour. Ruth and Hazel Fetherolf were appointed on the program committee. The meeting closed after playing several games. The next meeting will be held July 7.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Sunday, June 28, a number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elta W. Calvert of 801 Mohawk street, Columbus, in honor of Mr. Calvert's twenty-ninth birthday anniversary. He was given a complete surprise. All brought well filled baskets and a delicious dinner was served. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Calvert and son Jess, of Laurelville; Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Drake and son, Mack, of Orient; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hudson and daughters, Jane and Mary, of Ashville; Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Praither, of Camp Chase; Mr. and Mrs. Will Gildersleeve, Mildred, Grace and Helen Calvert, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Skidmore and daughter, Iretha Mae, and son John Robert, of Waterloo; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Drake, Mr. and Mrs. John Leonard, Mrs. O. A. Mace and daughter, Esther Mae, Mr. Hagans, Mr. and Mrs. Elta W. Calvert and son, Charles, and daughters Helen and Virginia, of Columbus. The afternoon was spent in visiting and taking pictures. All departed at a late hour wishing Mr. Calvert many more happy birthday anniversaries.

A miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Clara Leist, a bride-elect, was given by Miss Ruth DeLong and Mrs. Merrill M. Bowman at the latter's home, Friday, June 26th. The color scheme was pink and white. The guests consisted of relatives and friends of the bride. A number of useful presents were received.

The marriage of Miss Clara Leist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Leist, of Circleville, to Mr. Mark DeLong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeLong, of near Leistville, was solemnized Sunday afternoon, June 28th, 1925, at the Evangelical parsonage in Stoutsville. Rev. L. E. Hill, officiated. Miss Lucille Leist, sister of the bride, and Miss Ruth DeLong, sister of the groom, accompanied them to the parsonage. The bride was attired in a Copenhagen blue canton crepe dress with hat to match. The couple left immediately on a motor trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, returning by way of Pittsburgh. After July 5th, they will be at home to their friends at 407 East Mound street, this city.

Miss Marguerite Fohl is spending the week with Miss Hazel Palm, a student at O. S. U. summer school.

BETTER WORLD IS JUDGMENT OF NOTED MAN

Youth is More Intelligent and Has Much Reason for Present Revolt.

Cleveland, July 1.—(UP.)—There is another side to the wail that jazz, gin and gasoline are wrecking modern youth; the wild life often brings, youngsters to their senses.

This is the opinion of Common Pleas Judge Thomas M. Kennedy, just completing his twenty-third year on the bench.

"I am heartily in favor of youth in its present revolt," said the Judge. "Youth has plenty against which to revolt. The world is better than ever before and the younger generation is more intelligent."

"In spite of their so-called frailties I have no patience with their traditions."

The judge, himself, when a young man, revolted against old ideas. He ran away from home in England at the age of twelve, worked at many odd jobs and finally wound up in Cleveland where he attended Western Reserve University.

OLD IRONSIDES PRESERVED BY ORDER OF ELKS

Famous Frigate in Boston Harbor to be Saved by Dime Contributions.

Old Ironsides, the fighting frigate Constitution, is to be saved again from destruction, after 128 years' service in the U. S. navy.

Plans of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks to raise $300,000 for repair of the famous old ship, now rotting in Boston Harbor, where she was launched in 1797, were announced here yesterday by John G. Price, Columbus, grand exalted ruler. The task is undertaken at the request of Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, and the money is to come in 10-cent contributions from each of 2,000,000 school children and from each of the 1,000,000 members of the Elks' lodges in the nation.

No contribution of more than 10 cents will be accepted. A speaker is to visit every school in America and carry to the children the story of the famous old ship, first of the naval fleets, and a plea for help in saving her.

Final plans will be outlined at the grand lodge convention in Portland, Ore., next week. Announcement of the plan came in the last official letter Mr. Price will issue before he retires from office at the grand lodge session.

Congress last winter passed an act authorizing the rehabilitation of the old ship but failed to provide money for the work. Secretary Wilbur, however, is permitted to receive donations for the purpose. He asked the help of the Elks early in June, and the response was immediate.

"I am anxious to give the children the first opportunity as a patriotic lesson and an educational lesson," he wrote. "The B. P. O. E. has a great record for the welfare of the youth of our country."

It is a lesson that is closely woven into the history of the nation. Not only was the ship the first to be built by the United States after it became a nation, but its history is a thrilling story of romance and adventure.

From the October day in 1797 when she slid down the ways of Charlestown navy yard to the day a century later when she was towed back amid a patriotic demonstration, the Constitution has been seldom out of the public eye, and her record has written glowing pages into the annals of the navy.

She served as a training ship for the naval academy for many years. Finally she was no longer worth over, that. In 1897 she was towed into Boston Harbor for the last time, and Henry Cabot Lodge delivered an eulogy in the celebration that greeted her.

Now the stout planking, water-logged and softened, masts and rigging long vanished, the old ship rocks idly at her moorings, a dead hulk, shrouded in memories of brave deeds. Another year or two would finish her.

The plans for her preservation include the building of a new hull under the ship and fitting her out as a patriotic shrine so she may last through at least another generation.

A System of Farming That Brings Health and Prosperity

Every farm, regardless of the method of farming practiced or of the crops raised, should have at least a few good milch cows to provide

- (1) Enough milk, cream and butter for home use;
- (2) Enough skim-milk to raise some calves, pigs and chickens;
- (3) Enough cream or butter to sell to pay, in part or entirely, current living expenses.

This plan has been a "life-saver" for thousands of farmers, especially during the hard times of the past two years. It insures a living, at least, and often other income besides.

Such a plan pays best with a De Laval Cream Separator. It soon pays for itself—and skims cleaner, lasts longer and is easier to operate and clean than any other.

INDUSTRIES UNITE TO SAVE FORESTS

Board Is Named to Avert Lumber Waste.

Washington.—A nation-wide movement to conserve the lumber resources of the United States was started by the appointment of a conservation committee, of which Secretary Hoover has agreed to act as chairman. The committee is to make a thorough study of the wood-using industries and report at a conference to be held next fall. One of the big objects sought is to obtain closer co-operation in insuring full use of all timber cut.

The committee comprises representatives of the railways, the paper and pulp industry, purchasing agents of the country, wood-using industries,
lumber manufacturers and retailers,
architects and contractors, the American Engineering Council and the national farmer organizations.

A preliminary conference, called by Secretary Hoover, has been in session here for some time and it was voted that definite action to bring about conservation was essential to the best interests of the nation. At the close of the conference the situation was summed up by John V. W. Reynolds of New York, who represented the American Engineering Council.

"The United States," he said, "has been living in a fool's paradise. Foreign governments are studying economies, and unless we take the same step economy measures will be forced upon us. Industry must look at such problems from a national standpoint."

Voluntary Action.

Secretary Hoover explained what the Department of Commerce had been developing during the last three years with industry to eliminate waste.
It has been found possible, he said, to obtain practical results by voluntary action, the function of the government being to bring together the industries that they might unite for such action
as would serve the common interest.

Secretary Hoover said the fact that timber was being cut at a rate four times faster than it was being replaced, called for immediate and constructive action. The problem for the committee, he added, dealt with the problems faced in making for economy of use after the forest had become a commercial product.

Announcement was made by Mr.
Hoover that an anonymous gift of $25-000 a year for two years had been received, to serve as the nucleus for financing the investigations which the committee will undertake. He recommended that the program of the committee take the form of day-to-day operations, with studies being made of specific industries to ascertain the full facts, and then to be considered from the standpoint of their relation with other industries, to the end that the by-products of one industry might be utilized wherever possible by another.

One of the faulty functions of the present-day commercial and industrial fabric, Secretary Hoover contended,

was that industries had not been brought together to co-operate in the national interest. Such co-operation, he said, would not only bring economy of operation of industry, but would result in a more efficient use of raw materials.

Paper Industry.

A report on behalf of the American Paper and Pulp association was made by Norman W. Wilson, president of that organization. He said the paper and pulp industry was tackling the problem from two ends. More and more mills were employing foresters to secure expert treatment of the timber and to reproduce their wood supplies, he said. At the finishing end of the industry increasing attention was being given to research for new uses for by-products.

Hugh P. Baker of New York, secretary of the same organization, said that while the paper and pulp industry consumed 6,000,000 cords of wood annually, this was but 4 per cent of the timber cut in the United States. The value of paper products and paper goods is about $24,000,000,000.

The industry, he said, has two problems, one technical and the other commercial. In the technical field decay of wood and utilization of decayed woods has been combated by the forest products laboratory. Hardwoods were being used with success where they were not formerly usable and where a decade ago foresters regarded the hardwood trees as a nuisance.

Howard Andrews of Nashville, representing the National Association of Railroad Tie Producers, said that through the use of wood preservative
the industry already had reduced the replacement of ties from a rate of 325 per mile in 1920 to 90 per mile in 1921.

Col. W. B. Greely of the federal forestry service, who will act as vice chairman of the new conservation committee, argued for the establishment of some sort of clearing house and guiding agency to aid in the conservation desired.

Immense Water Project

The city of Manchester, England, has launched a water-power scheme which will cost $50,000,000. Haweswater, a little Westmoreland lake, is to be turned into a reservoir to hold 20,000,000,000 gallons of water, give a supply of 70,000,000 gallons daily, and thus solve Manchester's water problem for a hundred years. To do this will take ten years and involve the building of an aqueduct 84 miles long. Haweswater is 160 feet above Thirlmere, from which Manchester is at present drawing water, but it will have to be raised 90 feet. The picturesque valley of Mardale Green will be submerged under the new Haweswater, but the quaint old village church is to be rebuilt on higher ground.

so much. When it was finished Mr.
Parker gave him a check for $3,000.
Of course Jim had obligated himself to pay a lot of that out for materials and things. Well, you know what an old slow poke Jim Sykes is. Instead of taking the check to the bank right away he carried it around in his pocket and then poor Mr. Parker died. Now he must wait until Mr. Parker's estate is settled, and that may be a couple of years before he can cash the check. Poor Jim, isn't it a shame!"

"It's too bad," agreed Aunt Emmy,
"but quite in keeping with most folks' carelessness about money. People should be prompt in depositing checks.
Aside from such a serious thing as a death, an undeposited check is a nuisance to lots of people. Banks and business houses keep their books carefully balanced. If at the end of a month a check that has been issued has not been put through for collection it means a lot of unnecessary bookkeeping for the person who issued the check and for the bank."

"Then, too, there is the danger of loss. People often write their names across the back of a check and then carry it around for a day or two before banking it. An indorsed check is as negotiable as money. To be safe always indorse it to your bank. Write 'Pay to the Order of —' then the name of your bank and below that sign your name. That protects the check from being used, if it should get out of your hands. But never waste any time about depositing checks you receive."

"Not after what happened to Jim and after hearing you tell me all these things, Auntie!" said Molly. "I'd be scared to keep a check a minute more than necessary."—Anne B. Aynes.

DISPOSES IN 282 WORDS OF THE BANK GUARANTEE LAW

"Understand bank deposit guaranty being proposed in your legislature," telegraphed R. B. Clark, president of the Bank of Tupelo, Miss., to Paul R.
Brown, Secretary of the North Carolina Bankers Association. "Such a law in any form is a snare and a delusion. It is license and encouragement to irresponsible banks and banking and penalizes capital solvency and prudent banking. It creates a sense of security in the minds of the unthinking and uninformed that is false and impossible to be realized on ultimately. It tends to debauch one's right and duty to be thoughtful and discriminating. To compare it to legitimate insurance is without reason and absurd. It jeopardizes the solvency of all banks and the safety of all depositors for the theoretical safety of a few. We have had it ten years, and the fund is hopelessly in arrears. Have been fighting for repeal and have made progress. Only repeal can save our state system of banks. Many of the best are nation-alizing even now. Guaranty schemes always have been, are and always will be impotent, futile and disastrous.
Consider Oklahoma, Texas, Nebraska,
Mississippi and others. It is not
new. Has been tried, failed and discarded at intervals for more than 100 years in this country. No well-informed, honest and intelligent mind
can accept it in principle or practice.
Well paid intelligently competent supervision, restriction of banks to territory that will warrant sufficient capital investment and encourage surplus accounts is the only sane and honest course and will afford all the guaranty the depositing public is entitled to as compared with all other human affairs. Arouse your people and crush the misguided effort for all time. To do so will be worth whatever it may cost, and the value will be to your people generally more than to the banks."

The bill was reported unfavorably.

PITFALLS FOR THE UNWARY

Seek Bankers' Advice on Foreign Bonds, Says Department of Commerce.

American investors in securities of foreign companies and foreign governments should take care to purchase them only through reliable bankers or brokers, says Commerce Reports issued by the Department of Commerce. It adds:

"There have recently been several flagrant cases of securities being advertised in American journals at prices from 10 to 100 times the price quoted on the same date in the markets of the countries where the concerns are located. Some of these cases have even attracted the attention of foreign newspapers. This is not a safe kind of speculation for uninformed Americans, but the would-be investor can easily protect himself by asking the advice of his regular banker."

The Stair of Sighs was the flight of steps leading from the door of the upper prison to the forum in Rome, on which the bodies of those murdered by the emperors' orders were exposed.

HIGHWAY MARKER HELPS MOTORIST

Standard Signs Are Best Solution of Vexing Cross-road Puzzle.

The American Indian, when he went over a new or unfamiliar trail, retraced his steps by following bent or broken twigs left on his previous trip. This was the first road sign used in this country. Following the Indian came the white man who erected picturesque sign posts, and later, enduring mile-stones to mark the routes of hardy travelers of stagecoach days. And now we are concerned with adequate road signs to meet the needs of motorists.

Solve Crossroad Puzzle.
This is a problem which may well engage the attention of highway engineers. While there are maps and road guides in abundance for the tourist, the plainly marked, easily read standard highway markers along the trunk line highways in some of the states are the best solutions to the crossroad puzzles the motorist is called upon to solve at almost every fork of the road or intersection.

There are still far too many localities where the choice of the right road is left mainly to chance. Many motorists who have driven over a strange road have had the experience of suddenly coming to a fork in the road,

Standard Road Sign.

both of which seem to be equally traveled, and not a sign in sight to point out the right road. All states have not made adequate progress in highway marking and county roads are marked in only a comparatively few communities.

Appreciate Service.
Motor tourists are quick to appreciate highway service. There is no better way for a highway department to "sell" itself to the public than through just such activities as highway marking and providing dependable touring information.

It has been found unsatisfactory to allow any unofficial organization to take over this work. It is well recognized that in communities where the highways are marked with standard signs by the highway department in charge of the roads, motorists are sure to heed the notices of caution or danger. They know that such signs warn of a danger that really exists, and are not placed merely to frighten them into reading an advertisement.

Keep Fan Belt Tight to Prevent Any Slipping

The fan belt on the average car is a good example of the importance of knowing what's right for your own particular car, sifting promiscuous advice accordingly.

Some people will tell you not to keep your fan belt too tight, since such a plan will result in stretching it unduly, thus keeping it loose. That's good enough advice for some fans and some belts, but it doesn't apply in every case.

If a belt is flat and narrow, for instance, and runs on a flat and narrow pulley, it has to be tight all the time, otherwise it will slip. The owner has to use a type of belt that will not stretch to any extent after it has worked in.

When Springs Break

A broken spring may lead to serious trouble or even an accident, when experienced on the road if the driver attempts to reach the nearest garage without taking some steps to safeguard his car.

Probably the simplest way to make a quick temporary repair on a spring which is fractured through all the leaves consists in jacking up the frame slightly above its normal height above the axle, cutting a heavy piece of wood—a section of fence rail will serve in an emergency—to fit loosely between them and then letting the frame down on top of it. After the wood has been bound securely in place with rope, straps, wire or cable—non-skid chains sometimes come in handy for this purpose—it will be safe to proceed at moderate speed to the nearest repair station.

Increased Motor Speed

Now Blamed on Oxygen

Motor cars of all kinds have long been known to gather speed in some unaccountable manner when passing over smooth paved roads. The cause has long been unexplained, but it is now held, both by automotive engineers and road engineers, to be due to the abnormal profusion of vegetation usually to be found along these "mystery" roads. Trees and plants exude oxygen. Motors run more smoothly when there is plenty of oxygen in the air, as motorists are well aware. The increased amount of oxygen diffused in the localities where the vegetation is profuse, coupled with the smoothness of the road surfaces and the consequent decrease in tractive resistance, constitutes the cause of the "picking up" of the motor and the increased speed. Scientists recently conducted experiments in several localities, and along roads bordered by heavy vegetations, and these experiments demonstrated to their complete satisfaction that the behavior of the car was due to the increased amount of oxygen in the air.

Physician Warns Driver to Relax While Driving

Don't grip your steering wheel too tightly when you drive a car, or you may get neuritis in your shoulders, warns Riley D. Moore, osteopathic physician, writing in American Motorist.

"The prolonged tension and undue jarring transmitted to the shoulders may develop neuritis," he says. "Do not lean with your elbows on the wheel, for long at a time, for like reasons."

Doctor Moore says also: "The driver of a car should be alert but not tense, rigid. If you cannot relax, begin at once to learn how. If you are tense from nervousness and fear when driving, and cannot overcome it in a reasonable length of time, you'd better stop driving. If you do not, you will wreck your nervous system and in emergency likely wreck your car and a life as well."

It is cheaper to have the brakes re-lined than to wear the lining down to a point where the bands have to be replaced as well.

Excess Engine Heating

Traced to Kink in Hose

On one occasion, excess heating of an engine finally was traced to a kink in the rubber hose leading to the radiator. It had become heated several times and weakened the walls, so that in making a rather sharp curve it collapsed, partially shutting off the flow.

This was remedied permanently by removing the hose and inserting a coil spring made of rather stiff wire, wrapped about a broom handle. When freed this spring was slightly larger than the inside diameter of the hose but was inserted by turning the spring in the direction that the wire was wrapped when it was made. In the meantime being forced in. This straightened the kink, and it has not bothered since.

This method of reinforcing and strengthening various sizes and kinds of rubber hose and tubing also works well in all sorts of instances. In making sharp turns and bends, tubing for gas lights tends to collapse, and this can be remedied effectively by this method.

Yes and No

Tommy had been looking forward to Wednesday, on which day the druggist promised to give all the children a bird with each chocolate soda. Wednesday arrived and Tommy hurried to the drug store so he would get his "prize" before they were all gone. When he paid his check he looked at the clerk and asked whether he might have his bird. "Why," answered the man behind the counter, "You got a swallow, didn't you?"

It was a very sad but a very impressive lesson to Tommy. He decided the old saying, "nothing for nothing" was the truest ever spoken.—Indianapolis News.

Gentle Hint

Booth Tarkington was talking about a prolific novelist.

"He turns out trilogies and psycho-analysis romances and new thought tales by the score," Mr. Tarkington said, "but the more he turns out the less he sells."

"I think I'll go to the South seas or somewhere," he said in a discouraged voice the other day to a critic.

"Yes, I think I'll go off and rest up for a year."

"I suppose," said the critic politely—"I suppose your public is beginning to suffer from writer's cramp, eh?"

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Discussion of Real Helpfulness at Home — Measuring Flour Demonstration.

The Logan Elm Food Club, of Pickaway township, held their regular meeting June 26, at the school house. The session was called to order by the president, Margaret McKenzie and the secretary's report was then read.

The members answered roll call by telling of something new they had done, since the last meeting.

During the business period, plans were made for the club tour, July 9. Our leader, Mrs. Young, gave a discussion on "Real Helpfulness at Home."

(a) Need of Promptness.
(b) Importance of Being Dependable.

A demonstration on "Measuring Flour" was then given by Mabel Dumm.

Following this a short, but interesting program was given by the committee, Mary Elizabeth Rader and Alice Kibler.

The next meeting will be held on Friday afternoon, July 31, at the home of Marvne Kiger.

Delicate Instrument

There will shortly leave America an expedition that will travel half round the earth and will take daily measurements of the heat of the sun in the interest of long-range weather forecasting. It will occupy four years, in this task. The instrument that will be used is a radiometer invented by the late Dr. E. F. Nichols.

This radiometer is so sensitive that the ray of a candle situated 7,000 feet away and focused upon it is sufficient to turn its cables through several hundred scale divisions. Even the face of an observer, when placed in the position previously occupied by the candle, will produce a deflection of 25 scale divisions.

It has been suggested by a humorist that with this instrument one might almost note the approach of a friend, while still some miles distant, merely by the glow of his countenance. It might even detect the sun in an English summer.—London Tit-Bits.

Everything Running

One of the funniest things that ever came up in Judge Summerfield's court was a suit for the annulment of a marriage, instituted by an irate father. It seems that the young couple, though their intentions had been suspected and they had been closely watched, had managed to elude the vigilance of their elders in a manner worthy of record.

"Yes, sir," cried the father, in giving his testimony. "The young scoundrel bored a hole in the water pipe, and while I was holdin' my finger over it an' waitin' for the plumber, darned if he didn't grab my gal and light out for the preacher."—Los Angeles Times.

KEEPING WELL

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

NEARLY one hundred years ago, an English doctor, Richard Bright, wrote a paper for a medical journal, in which he described certain symptoms which he had found were associated with definite changes in the kidneys. Since 1827, this condition has been known as Bright's disease.

Bright found that, in all cases of this disease, both the kidneys were affected. They were small and hard, the part of the kidney which does the work of excreting the urine from the blood was much smaller than it should be and the kidney was largely made up of tough scar tissue, showing that the kidneys had for years been subject to prolonged irritation.

Along with this change in the kidneys are changes in other organs. The arteries become hard and thick; the heart, which has to force the blood through these stiff and narrowed tubes, has become enlarged, especially the left side, which pumps the blood throughout the body. This produces a high blood pressure.

The symptoms caused by this condition are not sudden and marked, but come on so slowly as to be hardly noticeable. The peculiar thing about them is that they apparently have nothing to do with the kidneys. A popular belief, largely due to patent medicine advertisements, is that pain in the back is an early symptom of Bright's disease. This is not true. Most people who think that they have Bright's disease, have no kidney disease at all. Many people who do not suspect it, have it, or are in the early stages of it. Even an advanced case may be entirely unconscious of it and may possess great mental and physical ability. It is this very insidiousness that makes Bright's disease such a danger to middle age.

How does this disease show itself? In a general feeling of poor health. The patient is tired, sleeps poorly, has frequent headaches and digestive disturbances. The tongue is coated. The patient has to get up, sometimes several times a night to empty the bladder. The amount of urine is increased and there is constant thirst. Attacks of bronchitis are common and the patient suffers from breathlessness, especially after walking briskly or climbing stairs. There is often trouble with the eyes. The skin is dry and the perspiration scanty. Sometimes the ankles will swell or the skin under eyes will puff up.

These symptoms, especially in men and women of middle age, are danger signals and should call for an immediate and careful physical examination. Don't wait for them to become worse. Find out now what the trouble is and how far it has gone.

Game Was Draggy and Looked Like a Shutout Until the Ninth Inning.

Sunday's Scores

At Circleville—Circleville 5, Wilmington 3.
At Washington—Washington 5, London 4 (12 innings).

The Eagle team took the odd game from Wilmington Sunday afternoon, in a rather draggy game by a score of 5 to 3. The game looked very much like a shut out, but the visitors got busy in the ninth inning and put across three runs, all three men crossing the plate after two were out.

Dewey pitched a good, steady game, keeping the hits well scattered, up to the ninth when the visitors put on their belated rally. Wilmington also got in three safe blows in the third, but a fine return on the third hit by Donahue in right field cut off a run at the plate for the third out. The Circleville infield indulged in an off-day contributing three wables, which fortunately had no bearing on the score.

Circleville made the most of all their opportunities, scoring five runs with an equal number of hits, which were mixed up with the visitors' miscues, and such free passes as were contributed by Pitcher Feike.

In the second inning Pettit, the first man up, was hit by a pitched ball and stole, Os. Miller and Donahue were walked and Pettit scored on a passed ball.

In the third Allen was hit by a pitched ball, Targee doubled to left and both men scored on Pettit's line drive to center.

In the fourth Thompson got a life on Botts' error, went to second while Donahue was being retired and scored on Dewey's hit. The final Circleville run came in the fifth; Pettit hit another sharp drive to the outfield, stole second and scored when Os. Miller's hit got past Davis in left field.

The Wilmington team secured their three runs in the final session. Bath secured the only free pass given by Dewey during the game, after Davis had struck out, Reardon hit a hot one down the third base line, which Thompson knocked down, but could not recover in time to retire the batter. Feike sacrificed to Dewey, Walton hit safely and went to third while an unsuccessful attempt was made to cut off Reardon who followed Bath over the plate. Murphy hit safe, scoring Walton and D. Botts hit to Dewey who threw him out at first for the final out of the game.

On next Sunday the Circleville team will play at London, and on the following Sunday Washington will play at Circleville.

The Circleville team suffered a severe loss during the past week when Outfielder McGrainer was signed by the Columbus Senators. However the Circleville fans will all be broad minded enough to hope that Mac will make good. The loss will be mitigated to a great extent by the acquisition of Ridgway, who played a nice game in center field, and while he did not secure a safe hit he strikes like he knew how and will get his share of the hits before the season is over.

Mother Commutes Over Sea

Mrs. Maren Christensen, who has eight children and a husband in Denmark and seven children living in the United States, will "commute" every six months or so between the two countries in order to spend a portion of her time with the two groups forming her family. The Christensens decided two years ago to come to America to live, but were frustrated in their plans because of the immigration quota difficulties. She was informed, however, that she could visit for six months in each year and thereupon she made her plans to "commute" every now and then until such time as the entire family can enter the country.

GUARDSMEN

AT A. C. PARK
ON DEER CREEK

Bathing and Boating With Plenty Shade and Swings Tables for Lunch.

Company M, O. N. G., of Washington C. H., will go into camp at A. C. PARK on Deer creek at the foot of Dublin Hill, nine miles south of Mt. Sterling, four miles northwest of Williamsport, and six miles northeast of New Holland, July 3rd, for the purpose of target practice and staging an imaginary battle.

The program will be target practice, and other features throughout the Fourth, battle at night, and qualification tests on the fifth. Three stirring events.

The battle, which represents a defense of an enemy attack, will be quite spectacular in every feature.

During the progress of the battle, there will be put to actual use smoke barrage, tracer bullets and illuminating rockets.

Machine guns will be brought to effective action against the rugged escarpment.

How many ever seen a machine gun battery in action? The Rainbow boys, who risked so much in France have and Co., M. O. M. G. is composed of members of the Famous Rainbow division.

This is to demonstrate a night attack under battle conditions, as real as peace time conditions can make it.

The public is cordially invited to witness our country's defenders in action.

This park affords bathing and boating facilities, with shade and parking space. Swings, seats and tables for lunches are convenient on the ground, also refreshments and lunch stand. Admission, only 10 cents.

AMUSEMENTS

Something new for Meighan. That's what Paramount claims for "Coming Through," Tom's new production which comes to the Metropolitan today.

The story is an adaptation of the novel, "Bed Rock," by Jack Bethea. Lila Lee is leading woman and Wallace Beery, Laurance Wheat, John Miltern, Frank Campeau and others play in support. It is a tale of the Alabama coal mines, written for the screen by Paul Schofield and directed by Edward Sutherland.

The star is cast in the role of Tom Blackford, chief clerk of a great steel corporation. He has been promised promotion to the job of Superintendent of Mines, but on the eve of his appointment he learns that he has been shelved to make room for the Treasurer's nephew. This is not the first time he has been denied advancement because some official's relative wanted the job, and reflection on his thwarted ambition makes him bitter at the president and the whole system.

Then destiny plays swiftly into his hands. He meets Alice Rand (Miss Lee), daughter of the president and wins her in a whirlwind courtship. They are married secretly. When Alice tells Rand about the wedding he is furious. He accuses Blackford of being a fortune hunter, of deliberately tricking the girl into marriage to further his own ambitions. When the girl asserts that they are truly in love, Rand offers to prove his point. He hides Alice in an alcove, sends for Blackford and traps him into admitting his ulterior motive.

Heartbroken and disillusioned, Alice turns against her husband. Blackford is shipped to Colton, the toughest of tough mining camps. Here, overcoming obstacle after obstacle, he puts up the fight of his life to make god and prove himself worthy of the girl's love.

Dorothy Fohl and Rosemary Hamel are visiting Miss Mildred Louden in Columbus.

Dickey was unlike most children and loved his morning bath. One morning his nurse told him to hurry and jump into the tub. Dickey was all smiles until he saw the water in which he was to bathe. There had been a fire in the neighborhood and the water was a rusty brown. Dickey looked at his nurse, and pleadingly said: "You're not going to make me take my 'bath' in soup, are you?"
Dickey's "bath" was postponed until afternoon.—Indianapolis News.

MAKING MONEY
- FIT BUSINESS

When Times Are Active the Supply Increases—Contraction Follows Seasonal and Periodic Slackening.

New York. — Demonstration that complete elasticity has been imparted to the currency in the United States by the Federal Reserve System despite assertions to the contrary is given in the American Bankers Association Journal by W. Randolph Burgess, assistant agent at the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

"Of all the money in circulation in the United States, Federal Reserve notes now make up almost one-half," he says in part. "In 1920 they were 70 per cent. The increase in currency which the war and high world prices made necessary was provided almost wholly by Federal Reserve notes. Just as the increase was wholly through Federal Reserve notes, so again the decrease was altogether in Federal Reserve notes. Reserve notes in circulation decreased from $3,300,000,000 in November, 1920, to $1,700,000,000 in March, 1925. Between the same dates other currency increased from $1,500,000,000 to $2,300,000,000, due to an increase in gold certificates.

"There are still some few who produce theoretical arguments to show that for some reason the Federal Reserve note is not elastic. These various arguments raise interesting questions, but they make little headway against the facts, for the facts show that the Federal Reserve note has been elastic.

How Currency Changes Volume.
"The amount of currency the country requires reflects changing prices, wage levels, employment and volume of trade. As an example, retail trade at Christmas time is always larger than at other times. This results in a considerable increase in the need for hand to hand currency. Currency withdrawals and receipts at the Federal Reserve Banks illustrate the way this special demand was met. Prior to Christmas there was paid out about $300,000,000 of currency, all of which was returned to the bank within the two or three weeks following Christmas.

"The mechanism is that when Federal Reserve member banks need currency for their customers they draw it from the Reserve Bank. Member banks can secure additional currency by borrowing at the Reserve Bank. Conversely, whenever currency in circulation becomes larger than is required by business it begins to return to the banks and they immediately utilize it to pay off indebtedness at the Reserve Banks, on which they are paying interest.

"The Federal Reserve System has made all types of currency, except national bank notes, elastic because all except those notes can be issued in amounts required and they all tend to flow back to the Reserve Bank when they are not required. There is another phase of currency elasticity. A $100 Federal Reserve note may represent only $40 in gold, because a gold reserve of only 40 per cent is required against Federal Reserve notes. On the other hand, a $100 gold certificate must represent $100 in gold. Thus the Federal Reserve Banks can issue, in response to commercial demand, two and one-half times as many Federal Reserve notes as gold certificates before the reserve ratio reaches the legal minimum.

Secondary Stretch
"This secondary elasticity was illustrated during the war, when in response to war demands Federal Reserve notes were issued to the amount of $3,405,000,000. The Federal Reserve System could have issued more than $800,000,000 additional without lowering the reserve against notes below 40 per cent, or the reserve against deposits below 35 per cent. In any emergency the power to issue these notes increases by 150 per cent the amount of cash which might be supplied to the country.

"Federal Reserve currency has proved itself flexible in war expansion and in post-war reductions. Since the establishment of the System the currency has been responsive to the seasonal and emergency needs of business. The Federal Reserve Act obtained currency elasticity by placing the country's reserve cash in institutions not organized for profit, from which currency might be withdrawn or to which it might be returned in response to the country's needs. While the existence of the Reserve System gives flexibility to almost all forms of currency, the Federal Reserve notes, secured in part by commercial paper, provides a possible secondary expansion in readiness for an emergency."

SUPPLYING THE
NATION'S CHANGE

Supplying the wealthiest nation in the world with change is a job of tremendous proportions. During 1924 the United States mints struck off 89,394,000 one cent pieces and 28,315,000 nickels. The small change of the nation was enlarged by 37,940,000 dimes and 16,892,000 quarters. While a drive was started to popularize the silver dollar, only 13,539,000 of the "silver cartwheels" were coined. Singularly, the half-dollar is the most unpopular coin that the United States makes. During 1925 there were just 142,080 half-dollars struck off, and all of these were the commemorative Huguenot-Walloon coins. The mints coined 10,300,500 double eagles.

Florine

Florine was a daughter of the duke of Burgundy and was betrothed to Suenon, king of Denmark, and she accompanied this prince to the first crusade, in 1097. She was to have married him immediately after the conquest of the Holy city. However, in a terrific battle with the Saracens, they were both killed, as were all their companions, not one being left to bury the slain.—Chicago Journal.

Bob Meusel Praised as Greatest of Fielders

"When he wants to be Bob Meusel is the greatest outfielder baseball has ever produced," says Joe Bush, veteran star pitcher, formerly with the Yankees, now with the St. Louis Browns.

"When I say this, I am not unmindful of Cobb, the wonder player, the great Speaker, and the brilliant Eddie Roush, as well as other stars I have seen in action.

"Very fast, using a long stride that has him going at full speed after taking a few steps, Meusel is without a peer in covering ground.

"In addition to his ground-covering ability, his judgment of distance is uncanny, and he has the greatest throwing arm in baseball.

"One must play on the same club as Meusel to really appreciate him. He has saved dozens of ball games for me by seemingly impossible catches or marvelous throws.

"If Bob was aggressive, had more spirit, he would be more talked about than Cobb, Roush or Speaker as outfielders."

A boy doesn't mind being bossed if he can see the sense of it.

Improved Methods on Cattle Ranges

Land May Be Made Still More Productive.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Although farming has been making inroads on the pasture lands of the Western range area for the past 30 years, it is still the great beef reservoir of the country. That there are many ways in which this native grassland may be made still more productive, is brought out by the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 1395, Beef-Cattle Production in the Range Area, just issued.

The range area is described as that region, west of the one hundredth meridian, where cattle and sheep are produced largely on native grasses, a region which takes in about 45 per cent of the total land area of this country. There is, of course, no sharp dividing line, but in a strip varying in width from 75 to 150 miles along the meridian there is a general tendency from east to west to devote less land to farming and more to pastures. During the past 30 years an increasing percentage of the land within the range area has been devoted to farming, the result of better crop adaptation, better methods of conserving rainfall, and irrigation.

The bulletin covers the various problems of the range cattle producer, including management of the breeding herd, handling cattle on the range, native forage plants, prevention of loss from poisonous plants, parasites and diseases, selection of bulls and cows, improvement of ranching properties and increasing the beef-producing capacity of pastures.

It is said that the range area contributes nearly 40 per cent of the nation's beef cattle. Corn-belt beef finishers are dependent on this region to a large extent for their feeders.

Do Not Plant Trees Too Close in Home Orchards

Standard trees placed at standard distances are better for the small home orchard than dwarfs or crowded trees, said Prof. Joseph Oskamp of the pomology department of the New York State College of Agriculture on February 9, at Farmers' week. Filler trees or small fruits can be planted the standard trees for early returns, he says, as apple trees should be planted 40 or 50 feet apart.

Most growers are inclined to plant too much, and discourage themselves by the size of their orchard, says Professor Oskamp. One tree of each variety is sufficient, or even one tree on which has been top-grafted two or three other varieties.

Small fruits may be grown with less trouble by one who desires fruit for home use. Strawberries, red raspberries, purple canes, blackcaps and blackberries, with a few gooseberries and currants make up a good small garden for home fruits.

Nearly all red raspberries in New York state are infected with mosaic disease, according to Professor Oskamp, and anyone planning to plant them should first consult the New York Fruit Testing association at Geneva. Professor Oskamp states that it is not generally a wise policy to trust all traveling tree agents who call at your door, but it is better to get your plants through an old and reliable nursery.

Yellow Transparent is one of the best early varieties of apple. This can be followed by Early Harvest, Red Astrachan, Sweet Bough, and McIntosh. Rhode Island Greening and Northern Spy or Baldwin are late varieties for winter storage.

Stock on Small Farm

On the small farm, hogs are probably the most profitable individual item in the live stock, particularly when they are kept along with a small herd of dairy cows. One very successful farmer on 80 acres maintains from three to five dairy cows, enough young cattle to maintain his herd, and from five to eight brood sows, from which he raises fifty to seventy pigs each year. He also has about a hundred hens and the necessary work animals.

FARM FACTS

One good apple suggests another—to the consumer.

It's time to prune the grapevines if you want the largest yields and the finest fruit.

The presence of certain weeds, such as sour dock or yellow sorrel, indicate an acid condition.

A grease coating on plowshares and mold board comes off a great deal easier than a rust coating.

If your cauliflower didn't pan out as an early summer crop, try fall planting. Sometimes it doesn't do well early in the season.

In small gardens where intensive fertilizing and cultivation is simple, the rows need not be as far apart as in larger gardens. Eighteen inches is ample for most of the vegetables.

The taller-growing vegetables, such as corn and pole beans, are usually placed toward the westerly portion of the garden, because they will cast shade then only during the hottest portion of the day.

Dinner to Lafayette Marked by Hilarity

A subscription dinner was, on Tuesday, given at Matthew Wilson's hotel by a number of the members of the legislature to General Lafayette, pursuant to arrangements previously made by Dr. Kitchen of the senate and Messrs. Gilleland and Meredith of the house of representatives, the committee appointed for that purpose by the subscribers. His excellency, the governor, General Lafayette, the heads of departments, Judge Gibson, Mr. G. W. Lafayette, Mr. Levasseur, the committee from New York in attendance upon the general and a few veterans of the Revolution, residents of this place, were present as guests. Mr. Speaker Marks presided and was assisted by Mr. Speaker Sutherland and Mr. Roberts of the house of representatives. About 120 gentlemen sat down to the dinner, which was served at a little after four o'clock. The dinner was an excellent one, says a report in the Harrisburg Chronicle, February 3, 1925.

The most cordial hilarity prevailed throughout the whole entertainment, in the course of which, at the particular and repeated request of the general, "Hail Columbia" was sung by himself and the whole company standing. The governor and General Lafayette retired at about eight o'clock and the company broke up shortly afterwards. At 11 o'clock on Wednesday General Lafayette took his departure for York.

Momentous Meeting

The first session of the Continental congress was held in Carpenter's hall, Philadelphia, September 5, 1774, with 44 members present; all the colonies were represented except Georgia and North Carolina. Peyton Randolph of Virginia was president, and Charles Thomson was secretary.

Actor's Ready Wit

As a young man, Walter Pritchard Eaton had the good fortune to hear the famous comedian, Peter F. Dailey, spring one of his best impromptu jokes during a barbershop performance of "The Merry Widow."

In his book, "The Actor's Heritage," he describes the scene in which Dailey is leaving a restaurant where the prices were something terrific. As he was making his exit, the comedian accidentally stepped on something and started to fall. Being an extremely heavy man, there was actual danger. The other players sprang to catch him and the audience gasped. But he lighted himself and then in silence stooped down and picked up a tiny object on which he had slipped.

The play stopped. In an expectant silence, Dailey drew out a pocketbook, counted the money in it and then deposited the total sum in the head waiter's hands.

"Here," he said, "is $12. I stepped on a bean."

Chinaman Takes Meals at His Convenience

Among the working class of China, as well as many other countries of the Far and Near East, eating is an outdoor sport. Summer and winter they take their food from little open air side restaurants, and chopstick it into their mouths, sometimes standing and sometimes sitting, either in the street or in a doorless, windowless shelter beside the street.

The eating goes on continuously. This does not mean of course that every workman eats all day long—as it might seem—but each workman eats when he can, and the restaurants are busy every hour of the day, knowing no separate time for lunch, breakfast, dinner or supper. On the main street there are restaurants every few steps, a dozen or so to the block.

Then there are the walking kitchens. One man carries on a pole slung over his shoulder, a cook stove suspended from one end, and a pan, with a counter on top of it on the other end. He moves his stand from time to time, going where business is best for the moment, now in front of a factory, now in front of a school, now on a busy corner, almost anywhere.

The keepers of the large restaurants, by way of advertising, establish their bakeries right beside the street in full view of the perhaps hungry passers-by. The baker, a mighty man is he, standing beside his two-by-two monument of dirt, kneading a mountain of dust-grayed dough, then heating it out flat with a stick, like a lousy drummer-lad beating a charge to battle.

Origin of "A No. 1"

So far as known, this originated in the classification of wooden ships by Lloyd's, the English insurance association. According to their classification, A 1 or A No. 1 indicated that the equipment and ship were in first-class condition.

Sue Hitler Estate.

Four legatees under the will of Nelson Hitler have filed suits in
common pleas court against George Steely, surviving executor of the estate of Nelson Hitler, deceased.

The plaintiffs are Rosa Walters,
Maud E. Roof, Alice E. Chamberlain
and Hale I. Lutz. Individual cases
have been filed in which each plaintiff
asks judgment for $4,628.66 with interest at 6 per cent from September
4, 1924.

In their petition they aver that
Nelson Hitler died January 31, 1917,
and that his last will was admitted to
probate February 7, 1917.

Thomas L. Hitler and George
Steely were appointed executors and
the former died December 22, 1920.

The testator bequeathed $12,000 to
each plaintiff and no part of which
was paid within one year from and after February 8, 1917. They claim that the legacy bore interest from
that date until paid.

The surviving executor made a
first payment of $4,000 on March 29,
1924, and on September 4, 1924, paid
a further sum of $8,000 thereon, but
has wholly neglected and failed and
refused to pay the residue thereof
and that there was due and payable
as interest on the legacies due plaintiffs at the time of the last payment
the sum of $4,628.66, to each one, for which each asks judgment and interest.

Charles Gerhardt and Barton Walters represent the plaintiffs.

Suits For Money.

Florence Ludwig and E. May Lutz
have each filed civil action in common
pleas court against George Steely,
surviving executor of the Nelson Hit-
ler estate and each asks for $4,628.66
with interest at six per cent from September 4, 1924.

The testator bequeathed $12,000 to
each plaintiff and no part of which
was paid within one year from and after February 8, 1917. They claim that the legacy bore interest from
that date until paid.

The legacies of $12,000 each have
been paid but plaintiffs each claim
$4,628.66 as interest.

Charles Gerhardt and Barton Walters represent the plaintiffs.

Ida Lerch has also filed suit against
the executor of the estate of Nelson
Hitler, deceased, for the same time
as in the cases named above, for the sum of $739, as interest on a $2,000
legacy.

C. A. Leist represents the plaintiff.

A GOOD SHOW.

The lovers of good—clean, wholesome fun and entertainment are certainly getting their money's worth this week at Mason's Field, where the popular repertoire company, Billroy's Comedians, are playing a week's engagement. Last night for their second night's engagement they were greeted by practically a capacity house, which proved that the people of Circleville appreciate a good entertainment. We predict capacity business for the balance of the week
for this clever and versatile company of players. Tonight is their feature night, when they are presenting the dramatic success, "Over the Ridge," with the usual vaudeville specialties between the acts. Mr. Wehle, manager of the company was in our office
this morning with the above information and also advises that there will be no advance in prices for feature night, the prices remaining the same, 15c and 25c. The doors open at 7:30
p. m. and the curtain rises at 8:15.

Trade Tricks

Senator Magnus Johnson, the Minnesota dirt farmer, said in a Kimball
speech:

"There are tricks in every trade.
The farmer is an honest man—an honest man if ever there was one—yet
there are tricks even in farming.

"An old farmer once said to me
in my youth:

"Never auction off a field of grain
except in windy weather."

"No? Why not?" said I.

"Gosh, you're green, young fellow,"
said the farmer. "Don't you know
that when a grain field's waving in the
wind it looks ever so much thicker?
Because then, of course, you see the
same head three or four times over."

The Day

"Lez see! This is Saturday, hain't it?" asked an acquaintance.

"I reckon so," replied Gap Johnson
of Rumpus Ridge. "I seed wife scrapping and scouring the children this afternoon, and 'lowed it mought be ta fix 'em up for Sunday school
t'morr'."—Kansas City Star.
